If you're looking to relax, play a game, explore the block world and have fun, this is the right game for you. Play the game where it belongs, not in the console. Build a giant sandbox game using blocks. Explore and build the block world. Plant torches and make the night turn into day. This game looks great in VR as well. Endless possibilities for building a world, and no boundaries... Are you ready to build? Download now! Star Trek: Kethba - Duel Star Trek: Kethba - Duel is a fun 4X strategy game that puts you at the helm of one of several factions competing in a galactic conflict. Travel to the galaxy and shape your homeland into a world-class economic powerhouse while proving yourself worthy of becoming the first Emperor of the new Galaxy. Conquest, diplomacy, production, exploration, and trade, it's your choice in how to wage this grand battle. You start with one of three species, but you can build and purchase ships, planets, and use the stars, mineral resources, and space for trade and espionage in the course of the game. Take control of your species and grow in prosperity through the ages. Gain an advantage over your rivals or lay waste to them in battle. The choice is yours. Choose Your Armies - to build your armies to dominate the game, build up the firepower of your fleets, and research technologies to best adapt and outmaneuver your foes Build Your Network - to control the galaxy's most strategic and lucrative systems, build your network of influence, secure trade routes, and build strong, connected alliances. Discover the Galaxy - the universe is yours to explore in this 4X game filled with diverse factions, unique races, and tons of intrigue, strategy and diplomacy. kingdom together... Just like placing blocks with your toys in your sandbox, stack and combine elements to build the world you want to live in. Your creations can help you to earn coins and unlock your favorite people. You can create your own town and grow your own city with multiple buildings and blocks and invite friends to visit your world. Build a city of your own style, decorate with elements, play game with your friends... Fashioned Arena is a building block game very similar to the game Minecraft, but tailored toward the fashion industry. Fashioned Arena uses blocks that can be placed and attached just like in Minecraft, but it also uses accessories like hats, glasses, shirts, jackets, etc. Accessories can be placed one at a time or in stacks which makes them easier to place and attaches them more easily. The more accessories you build on an item, the more it looks like the real thing. In Fashioned Arena, you can build with your friends and trade things back and forth. You can work together to make a complete look or trade certain pieces of clothing for other accessories. Game Features: × Stylish Blocks - Use stylish blocks to build structures and accessorize your avatar to create a unique look. × Custom Gear - Mix and match different gear to suit your style! × Avatars - Build your own avatar to be your own unique person! × Shareable - Share items with your friends or trade with them to unlock new accessories. × Customization - Design your own avatar or create an avatar of someone special to you. × Unlimited - Build your castle and grow your empire as you wish! × Custom Blocks - Customize your blocks to create your own custom blocks! × Blocks - Build and create with hundreds of different blocks to make it happen! × Complexity - From Light, Medium, and Hard modes for a more challenging game play. × Creative - Build your own unique building that you can share with the world! × More in the future... Gone Home is a mystery

: Pondering Countenance and Living Literately Originally published: October 8, 2007 By: Cheryl Odgers, Ph.D Introduction

In this ongoing quest for self-discovery, pondering your appearance becomes a voyage into the uncharted territory of your emotions and minds. Ponder the fact that every one of us faces the same physical universe. It is only our juxtaposition that creates a cultural and individual identity. It is here that we can delve deeply into our own inner terrain of personal and spiritual growth. There are many directions to go, theories to consider, and to research. Our thoughts and emotions create our faces and our bodies. So, how do we get the most out of what we are given? Everyone has pondered her or his appearance at some point, and pondering what we look like, is ultimately about feeling good about our appearance. 1. It is not always about the size of your smile In considering how we look, we can be concerned with the quality of our teeth, the color of our eyes and hair, or whether or not we are thin enough. What we ultimately desire may be wholeness of our appearance and/or acceptance by others. Or a mixture of the two. So, let's examine each of these possibilities. Teeth Smiles, and smiles alone, are created by the muscle group called the facial muscles. The facial muscles are like our spinning wheels of expression. (See the illustration that illustrates the mouth and teeth below.) Notice that, without teeth, or a smile, our mouths are closed. This is a universal language. It communicates rejection. Therefore, to display a "living smile," we start with the muscle group called the zygomatic muscles. These are the facial muscles that make your mouth open, round your teeth, pull your corners in and shut your mouth. The zygomatic muscles are just as important for allowing us to feel happy and positive as they are for opening our mouths and allowing us to reveal our teeth. They go back into the zygomatic bone and travel down to surround the mouth. When we smile, these muscles are working and this is where we concentrate our attention. They are just one group of muscles that we use during the raising and lowering of the brows, sucking in our cheek muscles to give a more expressive face, and the various facial expressions. If we were to take a peek underneath our chin, it looks like we are smiling, but
