Unfortunately with the new Depth SDK gameplay changes, I will not be able to update the other tools like the tools for the Gameplay section. That's why the gameplay tools won't be included as it does not compile. NOTE: The Gameplay Tools section in the editor will make the game compatible with prior maps. Memory Viewer: Keybindings for the Viewer are not automatically converted to the new game and I really didn't want to post them here. So if you need help for the readme: I've put the file on Github. For speed and accuracy reasons I recommend to use a Compile-Reload-Save for the view-type-binds. Sounds: For the sounds I also have converted the Tool. Api Modifier: What's this mean? This is the editor for modifying how the API works. If you ever need to change the services or even add a new one! Depth SDK Tools can be found in the Github: Please provide a note that the Depth Tools is a beta version! The maps won't follow the gameplay yet!! Addon Main Page: You can find the Depth-Tools on the addon main page and a download link at the bottom. Download: I've added a download link at the bottom as well. If you want the download link you need to use the Compile-Reload-Save method for the Tool. Hint: You can access the help in-game and check the Readme of the Depth-Tools for any further questions. Hint: Right click on the normal hotbar icon (top of the screen) and the menu will be displayed. Use the arrow keys to navigate through the menu. Note: The tools will generate a compatibility file. This file will be for all the games that support Depth maps. For Example: In the Save Game Save comparison window you will have a new selection for "Skyrim V1.3 SDK". You do not need to check those boxes as the other SKSE plugins for Skyrim already has taken care of that. Compile-Reload-Save: This tool will compile the Depth-Tools and you need to restart the game to let it change the dependencies. You'll get a new save-compilation window (it's

is a video game soundtrack featuring songs from the Space Invaders video game series. It was released on November 11, 1998 with soundtracks composed and arranged by Motoi Sakuraba and lyrics by Yasuharu Takanashi. The 96-page booklet includes the lyrics in Japanese with English translations. Background Ace In Space is the soundtrack to the video game of the same title, published by Sega for Game Boy and Sega Saturn. The game's background music was composed by the developer, Motoyoshi Mitura, under supervision from semi-professional musician and the composer for Space Invaders, Motoi Sakuraba. Because Mitura made an effort to compose background music for games, he was referred to as "the Sega gamer composer". Sakuraba was chosen for doing background music for the game because he was an "old friend" of Mitura's, as the two of them used to work at an arcade and disco club while they were very young. Sakuraba's band, Denji-Gumi, had the titular song on their first album, Dōjō Rock, which was released in 1978. Ace In Space soundtrack features songs from three of Denji-Gumi's albums; Pyneyusha (1981), Time Space (1982), and Shinne Place (1985). On February 18, 2011, Motonori Suga's YouTube channel uploaded an extended video of a live performance by Sakuraba performing the Ace In Space soundtrack for the game in front of a video screen and vocals performed by Mayumi Sakuraba. Theme of "Wheel" The "Wheel" motif of the Ace In Space theme came from the song "Rolling Wheel" from Denji-Gumi's book of the same name. It was later used by Sound Team as the intro theme for their arcade game, Galaxian. Furthermore, the Denji-Gumi song was one of the music compositions used in Space Invaders II as the main theme, which was originally supposed to be included on the soundtrack as sound track CD. However, Sakuraba passed away before finishing this CD. Although Mitura later made enough of the song to use in the Ace In Space score. Track listing 1999 remastered and original versions Of the nineteen titles included on the Ace In Space soundtrack, three tracks have been included on the remastered edition of the soundtrack. These include: "Rolling Wheel" and "Theme of Ace in Space" are included from the soundtrack of Space Invaders
