Elite is the first music production software that came out before the commercial explosion of Vocaloid software. The core concept of Elite was to offer an easy-to-use MIDI sequencer with very simple interface, few but powerful functions and a very high performance level. This project is the re-implementation of Elite on the VOCALOID engine. The VOCALOID version of Elite offers a specially dedicated track for Vocals. Thanks to this, lots of features of Elite, like Session function, are finally available on a VOCALOID engine. OTTAWA, Feb. 06, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Les approches méthodologiques québécoises fréquemment utilisées dans la recherche scientifique peuvent produire des résultats intéressants tout en étant largement souvent, voire toujours, erronés. Mais comment s'inventer un modèle méthodologique de recherche scientifique? Parmi les six facteurs majeurs d'un modèle méthodologique élaboré sur la base des cultures écoutées durant l'épiphanie de la pédagogie en recherche scientifique à l'école de la nouvelle génération, la réflexivité constitue le facteur le plus important, a déploré plusieurs intervenants lors de la conférence « Horizon d'entreprise pour la recherche scientifique », qui a réuni quatre membres du jury scolaire Theodora Celovo, professeure titulaire

Stability of a fast relaxing amorphous glassy polymer in a wide range of processing conditions. The stability of a fast relaxing weak glassy amorphous polymer (XG) was investigated in a wide range of processing conditions using calorimetry and imaging wide-angle X-ray scattering techniques. XG was formed by cooling a polymer solution in the deeply supercooled regime ($T_g = 1.0 \pm 0.1$ K) and it fully crystallizes within a few minutes at room temperature. By exploiting the glassy behavior of XG, a very simple cooling process was set up in order to achieve the slowest recrystallization rate obtained so far in polymers. This is also one of the lowest recrystallization rates achieved in glassy materials reported so far. The samples were heated at different rates by means of a laser diode and reached the glass transition region at different temperatures. After the glass transition, the samples were quenched in a variety of cooling rates and at different temperatures in order to explore the stability region of the glassy state. We found that the XG glassy polymer is actually stable for recrystallization rates close to $10(3) \text{ K}\cdot\text{min}^{-1}$. The observed stability window allows a simple way for obtaining a fast relaxing amorphous polymer, which is particularly useful for production of devices by direct polymerization and for its exploitation for applications involving fast dynamics processes.

Proprioception in a silicon controlled rectifier model of tonic pain in healthy participants. Silicon controlled rectifier (SCR) models are a useful tool to study tonic pain. The present study investigates proprioception in the SCR model. In Experiment 1, 20 healthy participants performed joint position matching in the SCR model at different levels of ankle joint position error (AE) or ankle velocity error (VE). Experiment 2 investigated the influence of tonic, phasic, and latent inhibition of SCR pain on proprioception in another 18 healthy participants. Experimental results: Experiment 1: At an AE of 30° , participants were unable to maintain
