How to download RIP Q: How to obtain a particular SSL certificate from a company I am working on a website that needs to provide ssl certificate signed by some "real" certificate. My website is all part of a corporate website and I have a certificate signed by my company's CA. How can I get a certificate signed by a "real" certificate? Is there a way to do this at all? I do not have direct contact with the author of the CA, so I do not know the CA's public key. Is there a way to somehow derive the public key of the CA from its CA certificate? Thank you! A: There is no way to derive any relevant CA public key from the CA certificate itself; the CA certificate only contains one key, and the CA itself owns it. Your CA is probably an intermediate CA, so you can in principle get the CA certificate by contacting it, and it should give you all the details of its chain of trust. This typically involves providing to the CA a private key (the so-called trust anchor) for the root CA (usually not a problem, since it is not your CA). The root CA can thus issue a certificate for your company which is not only valid for your domain name, but also for your IP address. Otherwise, given a certificate, you can check in various ways if it is valid: for the given public key, see the keyUsage extension of the signature algorithm; for the given subjectPublicKeyInfo (SPKI) encoding of a certificate, see the subjectAltName extension (a bit trickier); or check if the subjectDN matches your company name in a DNS CA certificate. In any case, only a CA can issue a valid certificate, so one CA certificate won't do.
