I want to change the column to a reference type so that I can do some database level operations to check if the constraint has been violated. The following works :- var someObject = new SomeObject(); someObject.Id = 5; Session.Save(someObject); The following does not work :- var someObject = new SomeObject(); someObject.Id = 5; Session.Save(someObject, x => x.Id, x => x.Reffkld); I get the exception could not execute query: [...]. The SQL being executed was: INSERT INTO [SomeObject] ([Id], [Reffkld]) VALUES (?,?) My fluent mapping for the class SomeObject is :- Map(x => x.Id); Map(x => x.Reffkld); Is it possible to use lambda expressions with fluent nhibernate mappings? A: I'd use something like this: Mapping(x => x.Id, m => m.Column("Id")); Mapping(x => x.Reffkld, m => m.Reference("SomeObject", "Reffkld")); Or better yet, with version 2.2: Map(x => x.Id).Column("Id"); Map(x => x.Reffkld, ForeignKey("Id")); For Nhibernate to dynamically create the SQL to insert into that column it needs to know what the property is for that column, so you can put that in your mappings.
