Although Mahindra has always prided itself on its ability to spend big on innovation, it was perhaps expected that the Indian OEM would take a similar approach with its future products, no matter the industry. To say that the MRPL (1) is the kind of vessel that will simply be the force behind the advances of the future is definitely putting it mildly, a simple example of its capabilities is that the vessel will be able to host capacity that is over 32 meters (98 feet), not including the helicopter pad (2). The cost of that kind of capacity will undoubtedly be prohibitive, but the introduction of helicopter the MRL will undoubtedly propel this into the kind of vessel that requires its own dedicated fleet. You really have to see a picture to understand the setup. The submarine will be able to increase operational capacity by a factor of 40% with the addition of a second helipad (3). Additional benefits include the optional addition of a special inshore connector which will be able to take in-reach loads such as the traditional command boat (4) or commando as well as transfer those loads directly to the sea. It's easy to get a sinking feeling when a submarine line-up is revealed. The Trump administration's plan to build a wall on the US-Mexico border has been so fraught with controversy that Congress and political science professors say it's the first time a major presidential campaign has fully overshadowed an international debate for the White House. "It's really the first time there's been a true international campaign war about a national issue," says John Mueller, a political scientist at Ohio State University. "It's not on par with Iraq or the Cold War, but it's in the same league as Vietnam." President Trump has consistently promised to build a wall on the US-Mexico border during his campaign. The candidate criticized the Texas segment of the planned wall as "an incomplete wall" — but the original estimate of $20 billion, he said, would allow him to make the wall "totally effective and massive." Americans aren't sure what to make of the $25 billion price tag, though. Since the campaign, Trump has talked about a wall hundreds of miles long that would be made up of steel and concrete, and he's also floated the possibility of building it on land he already owns — but Congress still hasn't appropriated the funds to build it. As of late July, only a small part of the wall had been built. This isn't the first time that an international border wall has been seen as a source of tension — and it might not be the last. What's new:

Plasticalypse - Submarine Adventures is a casual puzzle-platformer video game by Bang Way, with art and concept by Cécile Nobécourt. Development started in 2013 on Game Maker: Studio and was announced on May 21, 2016. The game was produced under the supervision of producer and CEO at Zeitgeist Interactive Alain Boghossian. Gameplay

There are three modes in Plasticalypse, Submarine Adventures, Plane Cruiser and a Survival mode. As the player, you are being transported through the sea by the Submarine, find a route and complete various missions for rewards. In Submarine Adventures mode, players enter a swimming underwater world and their goal is to create a route which contains no in-game obstacles; the route can be as small as a single point (a single pixel length) or as long as a preset, mostly very large length. One of the main difference with Submarine Adventures in comparison with the other two modes, is that there are no pre-made routes: the player must create their own (hence the Submarine moniker) to find their way. Design Plasticalypse is developed with the visual approach aimed to create a "futuristic-fantasy-world inspired by a magical place called Berlaque."

The color palette and the environments of the game are specifically designed to satisfy both his visual and sound goals. One of the main idea was to add a sense of play to the game, and the final result provides a very playful and playful look. The game has a single mode consisting of 8 free exploration areas with several objects and characters that are discovered. Gameplay elements are inspired by the movies Crash and Journey to the Center of the Earth. The game is released as an escape-from-work game, but players are expected to solve the puzzles, which are connected to the background, to complete the game. There are 3 characters in Plasticalypse; a submarine, a plane and a shark. Plot

The setting of Plasticalypse is heavily inspired by two recent movies, namely the 2006 film, Crash, directed by and starring Paul Haggis, and the 2012 film, Journey to the Center of the Earth, directed by Brad Bird.

Consequently, the main antagonist of the game is a mad scientist named Victor Baranov, the main antagonist of the 2006 film, and Claude Verney from the 2012 movie. The story begins with a
