To help reduce the number of accidents on the road, official traffic enforcement has been used to raise awareness. With the rise of Intelligent Transportation Systems (ITS), the United States has seen a significant decrease in deaths by accidents on the road. In the early stages of the ITS era, however, intelligent transportation systems are still in their infancy. As such, the most important and challenging task ahead of ITS is to increase road safety. Evaluating the current status of ITS applications is important to improving road safety in the US. The ITS application is a critical component of the Intelligent Transportation System (ITS). As such, ITS provides useful information that will reduce accidents, improve road safety and improve road traffic. ITS application integrates all the functions of vehicles, such as automatic speed adjustment, road guidance, emergency warning, traffic information and automatic vehicle maintenance, for safer road traffic. Including a variety of information, such as traffic volume, road conditions and costs, and safety information. As compared to computer and mobile applications, ITS has an advantage in that they are better able to acquire information and deliver a warning in an emergency situation. Intelligent Transportation Systems Application is a key sector of ITS and therefore, ITS application is being conducted with the aim of reducing accidents by improving road safety. A: I was just about to post this as an answer, until I remembered you already answered it (twice). Here's my update: The code you show below, in your code block above, is the Rdata part of a Rdata file. This Rdata file is going to be loaded into your R session. When you call the rrhelp function you call the help function for that rdata file. What you need to do is find the rrhelp function. It will be near the top of the help function list. I just tested and using the online help for a rdata file, I got this help window: This only works if the file itself is located in the R library. I don't know whether you have the rdata file installed for the rmarkdown package.

If not, here are the instructions. You need to get the rdata file from the R website, follow the steps (but make sure the rdata file is copied as shown in step 5) and then follow the instructions here. Does that help? #include #include #include #include #include #include #include #include #include namespace horizon {
