Feature: A simple Registration Scenario: Registering the user with the proper data When I register "Samantha Smith" and "555-555-5555" as an email address and phone number, respectively And I fill in the "Password" field with "xxx1" And I select "XYZ Corp" Then I should be presented with a screen saying "Thank you, You are now registered" If I open the visual studio (2013 express) in the actual solution that is the only error I receive. If I simply open the feature file in Notepad, I receive a huge list of errors such as: Step definition "@When I register "Samantha Smith" and "555-555-5555" as an email address and phone number, respectively" not implemented because of errors in the "When I register" step, and I'll keep on receiving this error until I close the feature file. I did try to update the feature file, but I do not receive any errors, but I do not even see the prompt of a change in the output window of Visual Studio 2013. I have updated VS Express for Windows Phone (not sure what version) and I also have updated the .Net Framework to 4.5. I removed and reinstalled the SpecFlow Nuget package, I deleted all the SpecFlow temporary files, and I even tried deleting the solution and re-opening it. I have also tried to re-create the project. What else could be the problem? A: Finally, the solution was to open the IDE again and close

You can modify the request headers, intercept requests, and decrypt any cookies. Protocol for a web proxy server based on the most recent version of the HTTP protocol. The installers do not require administrative privileges.1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a waveform memory device used for recording a high-speed pulse signal. 2. Description of the Prior Art When pulse waveform data of extremely high-frequency is recorded on a memory device, a memory device capable of rapidly recording the pulse data is required. There are known waveform memories of two kinds, one is a waveform memory of the charge storage type and the other is a waveform memory of the phase-change type. These memories have respective demerits. For example, the charge storage type memory requires energy for writing, reading, erasing and rewriting data, and has a large memory capacity because data must be accumulated in a capacitor. In contrast, the phase-change memory does not require a large memory capacity since it does not require accumulation of data. However, it takes much time to change the phase of the material, and it is necessary to erase the entire memory before the memory is reused. In order to overcome these demerits, the inventors of this invention have already proposed a memory device of a new type which does not require accumulation of data and the need for the memory capacity and does not require the erasure of the entire memory before the memory is reused, a composite type memory device composed of a large number of memory elements of memory elements of the above new type disposed on a common substrate in a matrix fashion (for example, in Japanese Patent Laid-open No. 307944/1986). The memory device as proposed by the inventors of the present invention is now explained with reference to FIG. 1 in which a large number of memory elements 1 which are independent from each other are disposed on a common substrate in a matrix fashion. In each memory element 1, an information write signal is applied between a word line 4 and a data line 3 in the X direction, while a reset signal is applied between a row line 2 and a data line 3
