For instance, in my organization there are two users: Adam and Bob. Adam created an organization record and Bob then linked it to Adam via email address. Now Adam is using a different email address and I need to find all records in the organization table that is linked to the other user (Bob). Is there a way to do it through ODBC? A: One way would be to use FetchXML. Unfortunately it's a bit of a pain to get into but once you get into it, you'll find it's great for building queries dynamically and then mapping those queries to Odata actions. I'm not sure what you're looking for in the end, but you can use the LinkEntity method in a FetchXML to link a record to a different user (by email address), but you'll have to run the FetchXML against the organization table (the linked entity will have to be a contact). What's New In AutoCAD?

AutoCAD now includes support for the EDA Markup Assist (EMA) specifications which describe information that can be added to a.dwg file to communicate information to another engineer. These data are typically stored in printouts or PDFs, but can also be added directly to a.dwg file as comments, but you can also add these tags as a symbol in your.dwg file and apply a style to the symbol to tell the program how you want the comment to look. The program automatically reads the data and will apply it to your drawing. We've also added support for the newer Data Set Extension (DSX) standard. Locking and Copy Restrictions: Automatically lock and copy drawings to prevent unauthorized changes. (video: 1:16 min.) You can now lock objects in your drawings so that no one can change them, and you can select which objects to copy to the clipboard when you copy drawings to the clipboard. (video: 1:15 min.) Style Manager: Access multiple style styles at once. Create multiple styles for a single object and reuse them. (video: 1:14 min.) Work with multiple styles at the same time, apply them, and combine styles to apply several styles at once. Enhanced Markup: Create and apply legends with the Markup Assistant. (video: 1:18 min.) Use the Markup Assistant to create and apply symbols, text, arrows, and other visual elements to drawings. (video: 1:19 min.) Lookaround and Snap: Resize and snap objects in different directions, including to corners, edges, and other objects. (video: 1:13 min.) Create grid lines in different directions, align objects to other objects and views, and use the new Lookaround tool to navigate to objects. (video: 1:19 min.) Smooth Surfaces: Receive smoother geometry, with smoother edges and more consistent faces when you apply a bevel or chamfer. (video: 1:15 min.) Applied/Nonapplied Windows: Improved overall appearance of 3D drawings by applying a light shaded background to the layers and surfaces of a drawing. (video: 1:15 min.) Supports layers and surfaces and their associated properties, such as shading and materials. Model:
