Large Address Aware Hoi3

First, infantry can be a land power, or can be a sea power. I actually think that as far as a national power goes, the sea power is better. I just dont see a good reason why a player would pick a sea power unless they were directly involved with the sea. The army isnt very large, so consider doubling the strength of any corps until you need to be careful of that manpower window. Submarine corps are also useful. Let me be frank: nowadays, very few people use navies. I dont see why thats the case. If youre playing a world power, I bet youll have a navy. But, it doesnt have to be a sea power. Infantry is just as important, and theres a lot of cross over. Secondly, let me say that I favor artillery corps over cavalry corps. In fact, in most of my play, I have found the two quite similar in value. Manpower Rich, Officer Rich: The alternative to the Hoi3 is the Cavalry Hoi. Here, the horse is superior to the men (as well as a lot of other features). Though there are 10,000 spartan horsemen in a regiment (4 cavalry regiments for each army corps), they are still not as well-equipped as normal infantry. Being a cavalryman in mid-war and early-war turns out to be really bad. Large Address Aware Hoi3: So to summarize Large Address Aware Hoi3 means that Bloomsburg is checking in on yourself. Did you meet the weekly goals? How many pop powerups have you got left? Has one of your pops had a bad day at work? Take a look at that. Also take care of bringing in your pops and getting them checked out, in addition to your own crowd-in check (which I always forget to do).
