AeroFly Professional Year of release: 2005 Version: 1.7.7
Developer: Aerofly Software Platform: Windows 98/ME/2000/XP Vista compatibility: yes System requirements for Windows 98, ME, 2000, XP Interface Language: English + Russian AeroFly Professional is one of the best applications for modeling, design and demonstration flights. The program is completely free, and at the same time, it provides users with all the features of professional models. The AeroFly Professional includes some really interesting modes and offers both three- and two-dimensional visualization, so that while flying, the user can change the altitude, speed, direction, angle of attack, simulate different situations in the air and more. AeroFly Professional supports a large number of different additional models, and allows you to control them with one program. The AeroFly Professional application has a built-in Flight Planner program, which allows you to create terrain maps and save flight plans that can be used later. The program has a large number of different sound effects and settings that allow you to simulate engine noise, sounds of passing planes, etc.
AeroFly Professional can be used for learning to fly an airplane as well as for aerobatics. Also with AeroFly Professional you can take video and photo shots, and then the shots can be viewed in the program. The program is easy to use: it has handy buttons and controls that even a novice pilot can understand. With AeroFly Professional you can create any aircraft from ready-made parts that come with the program. In the program it is possible to save the created airplane as a GIF-animation, as well as an AVI video file. The program AeroFly Professional Deluxe is distributed as Shareware. The program has three editions: Essential ($150), Pro ($500) and Professional ($1000). All three editions differ from each other in functionality. In the Essential Edition, it is only possible to build, but not to run a model. The Professional Edition allows you to run the model and also save the project to a GIF file. The Professional Edition has the ability to save the project to an AVI file.
