protection system. Such modifications require a building permit and other permit requirements in accordance with applicable M.G.L. c.148. The protection system allows you to control and isolate the room from the external environment, thereby preventing the formation of condensate in the interior of the building. According to M.G.L. c.148 and p.484-485, the protection system must meet the requirements for such elements as: - thermal insulation of the coating, - thermal insulation of external walls, - air conditioning ducts, - water heating systems, - heating systems, - heating/cooling systems, - ventilation systems, - fire extinguishing systems.
