I have a string "16.0.2208.0718" And I'm looking for a string with the same format but with a different endNumber. The endNumber is always on position 1. I've tried string.contains like this: .contains("16.0.2208.0718") It seems to find it but when I check the value of the string, it return false. I've also tried string.contains("16.0.2208.0718+") Same problem. A: To catch everything but the 0 in the string 16.0.2208.0718, use string.Contains("16.0." + endNumber + "."); // This code is part of the Fungus library (// It is released for free under the MIT open source license (package de.snozbot.fungus.internal.dataRef; import java.util.Optional; import de.snozbot.fungus.core.dataRef.ByteDataRef; public class 04aeff104c
