That's because the nearly two dozen Republicans at a new town hall forum who took part in the group's rollout process of the healthcare bill all bought into the Republican alternative and praised it. The town hall, which took place at Horseshoe Canyon in the Palmetto Bay development in Florida, was hosted by Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi, who appeared alongside Sen. Bill Nelson, D-Fla. Attorneys general from about a dozen states also attended. The event was not open to the public, but attendees were allowed to view a livestream on Facebook, The Hill reported. The event marked the first time any Democrats have gotten a chance to hear from Republicans who had been tasked with helping to craft the bill, which is meant to replace President Barack Obama's health-care law. The dozen or so panelists all praised the plan and compared it to the Affordable Care Act, the health-care law passed in 2010 and upheld by the Supreme Court under the Trump administration in June. "This bill is the same as Obamacare,” said Beth Holland, who owns Ocala Radiology in Ocala, Florida, and was one of the town hall’s panelists. “It’s the same bill and about 50 percent of the costs.” The bill also received praise from Vice President Mike Pence, who helped orchestrate the event. “What we’ve done in Congress with this plan is to lower the premiums in Florida by 30 percent,” Pence said in remarks on Sunday. “We’ve cut the number of bureaucracy jobs by more than 30
